

The Sight Word Train

A Motivating Reading Activity

The Sight Word Train

A motivating reading activity from PositivelyAutism.com

Table of Contents

About The Sight Word Train	3
Train Engine, Stop Sign, Extra Cards	4
Common Words, Set 1	5
Common Words, Set 2	10
Common Words, Set 3	15
Color Words	20
Number Words	23
About Positively Autism (Free Resources)	27

Train Engine, Stop Sign, Extra Cards (Blank)

now	of	old
on	our	out
ran	run	saw

Saying “Hello” to People

This story begins on page 3. Please review the notes for parents and teachers on the next page.

© 2011. PositivelyAutism.com

Visit www.PositivelyAutism.com for more autism teaching resources.

Notes for Parents and Teachers

- I used this story for several students. One student was very shy about meeting new people, and enjoyed computers, so I thought this would be a good way to practice the skill. If your student isn't shy, you can leave these parts out of the story.
- I also used this story for helping a student practice saying hello to other teachers and students at school.
- When you get to page 13 ("Let's practice saying hello"), you can either practice saying hello to the pictures of people in this book (you can give them names), or you can practice with real people. My second student enjoyed saying hello to others at school immediately after reading that part of the story.

Saying “Hello” to People

Sometimes, I meet new people.

If I meet someone new with my mom, dad, or teacher, it is nice to say hello to the new person.

There are many ways to say hello.

I can say, "Hi."

Hi

I can say, "Hello."

Hello!

I can say, “Hi, How are you?”

I can also wave to say hello.

Sometimes, I might feel shy when saying hello to people. This is okay. My mom, dad, or teacher will stay with me to help me feel less shy.

It makes people feel happy when you say hello to them.

Let's practice saying hello.

After you say hello, the person might say hello to you, or ask you a question like, “What’s your name?” It is okay to answer the question.

I am learning about saying hello to people!

